Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 27 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mostly cloudy today with rain into the south later.

Today:
Mostly cloudy for many, cloud thick enough for a little patchy rain at times with more persistent and more widespread rain for Wales, southern England and parts of the Midlands and Northern Ireland later. Northern Scotland brighter and colder.

Tonight:
Early evening rain over Wales, southern England and parts of the Midlands and Northern Ireland spreading northwards and turning to hill snow over Scotland and northern England.

Thursday:
Mostly cloudy with some rain for many and snow over parts of Scotland and northern England, this snow mainly on hills and inland. Cold in the north, southern UK milder.

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Weakening rain and hill snow moving south Friday. Mostly sunny Saturday, but rain in far south, wintry showers the far north. Snow turning to rain spreading from the west Sunday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.